

COUNTY-WIDE PICNIC PLANNED FOR DEFENSE TEST DAY HERE

Plans Formulated at Meeting of Representatives of Organizations and the Townships

COMMITTEES ARE APPOINTED

Effort Will be Made to Enroll All Men of Military Age For 24 Hours Service

WOMEN TO BE ENLISTED

Judge Will M. Sparks, Robert E. Mansfield, John H. Kiplinger, and Others Discuss Purposes

Plans were formulated at a meeting of representatives of Rushville organizations and the townships of the county, at the court house assembly room Friday evening, for an extensive observance of Defense Test Day by the whole county, in this city, on Friday, September 12.

A county-wide picnic, similar to those held in the past will take place at Memorial Park, and every person in the county will be asked to join in the community picnic in dinner, which will be served under tents.

Committees were named today by the general committee composed of Voorhees Cavitt, county chairman, and Robert E. Mansfield and John H. Kiplinger, who were selected by Mr. Cavitt to assist him.

It was announced today by the committee that Judge Fred C. Gause of Indianapolis, a member of the Indiana supreme court and former Judge of the Henry circuit court at Newcastle, would deliver the principal address at the Defense Day Test meeting at the coliseum in the park. During addresses on the subject Friday evening by a number of men, the question of following the suggestion that every young man of military age (18 to 31 years) be enrolled for 24 hours service, was raised by Ross Hutchinson, an ex-service man of Arlington, who questioned the advisability of it, because he could not see how the men could be given any reason for it.

John H. Kiplinger explained that the enrollment was merely a "paper" organization and that the names enrolled would not be placed in the hands of army officers. He asserted that it was not a scheme to enroll men in the reserve because the Defense Act of 1920, under which Defense Test Day is being held, did not provide for any such procedure.

The enrollment of men of military age for 24 hours service will be simply that they would be willing to enlist, as they did in 1917, if an emergency existed.

Mr. Cavitt presided at the meeting and Judge Will M. Sparks made the principal talk, emphasizing the need of being prepared to defend ourselves against the insidious propaganda

CHESTER MEAL WINS AT SHELBY COUNTY FAIR

Orange Township Farmer Takes Several Firsts and Championships With Poland Chinas

AGED BOAR KILLED BY INJURY

Chester Meal of Orange township, who produced the largest ton litter in Indiana last year, won three firsts, three seconds, a third and two fourths, and had the champion sow, reserve champion sow and champion herd with his herd of Poland Chinas hogs at the Shelby county fair in Shelbyville this week.

Mr. Meal made this remarkable showing with his herd despite the fact that he was unfortunate in losing his aged boar, Revelation 2nd., which received an injury a few days before the fair which caused his death. The boar weighed 990 pounds and would have been shown at a weight of 1,000 pounds.

The prizes he won were as follows: First and fourth on aged sows, first on yearling sow, first and third on senior sow pig, second on senior boar on pair—junior sow and boar pig and on pair—junior sows and boar pig and fourth on junior boar pig.

CLOSING TO BE MORE GENERAL

Dry Goods and Clothing Stores Not to Open Labor Day

Agitation for a more general closing, in observance of Labor Day on Monday, has spread to the clothing and dry goods stores in Rushville, according to an announcement made today, and it may result in other stores and businesses suspending either for a half day, or for the entire day.

The annual holiday, while not generally observed in this city, is becoming recognized as a holiday more each year. The postoffice, banks, barber shops and members of local unions, always observe the day.

PACT IS SIGNED BY ALL NATIONS

Representatives of Big World Powers Accept London Pact, by Affixing Signatures

AGENT-GENERAL NAMED

O. D. Young, One of the Authors of Dawes-Young Plan, Will get the Machinery Started

Paris, Aug. 30—Owen D. Young, one of the authors of the Dawes-Young plan for reparations payments, was officially appointed agent-general of the reparations body today. His appointment is for a short time, merely to get the machinery started.

By LLOYD ALLEN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)
London, Aug. 30—The protocols of the pact of London were signed by the diplomatic representatives of England, France, Germany, Belgium and other interested powers shortly after noon today.

The formal signatures today cemented the pact which was agreed upon and initiated on the last day of the London conference August 16.

Official signatures on the pact were withheld until the parliament of both Germany and France had agreed to the pact. Germany's acceptance came yesterday after stormy debate in the Reichstag.

Ambassador Kellogg of the United States was present as an invited guest at the conference today when the protocols were signed. The United States did not sign the pact as America was represented at the inter-allied conference only as an unofficial observer.

In the absence of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Sir Eyre Crowe signed the pact on behalf of Great Britain. The signing was without ceremony and was a mere formality. Among the provisions of the pact is one whereby Germany is to receive a $200,000,000 loan.

16 FIELD DEMONSTRATIONS

The swine sanitation campaign, which has been in progress in Rush county during the past ten days under the direction of Dr. G. N. Wickwire, federal veterinary, came to a close Friday and much good was accomplished, it is believed.

There was a combined attendance of 568 at the ten night meetings held during the campaign in every township of the county except Posey and Ripley. Sixteen demonstrations were held during the morning and afternoons, the total attendance being 397, and there was some or more in every township except Ripley. Twenty-four hogs were posted by Dr. Wickwire at the demonstrations.

Dr. Wickwire won the confidence

Drop Anchor Opposite Shanghai to Protect American Lives And Property in Impending War

RIVER FULL OF VESSELS

Strict Neutrality Will be Maintained. But Interests of All Will be Protected

Shanghai, China, Aug. 30—Eighty American marines arrived from Chee Foo today prepared to aid in the defense of the American settlement in Shanghai should the threatened civil war bring an attack upon the city. Four hundred British marines are due to arrive here tomorrow.

Shanghai, Aug. 30—Four United States destroyers steamed up the river and dropped anchor opposite the city today to re-inforce the other American warships here to protect American lives and interests in the impending civil war.

The river is now filled with foreign men of war, whose commanders have announced a strict neutrality would be maintained but that their several countries' interests would be protected at any cost.

Six of a squadron of General Luo's airplanes were damaged last night by spies of General Wu Pei Fu, who crept up on the field and escaped after their work was finished.

London, Aug. 30—Troops of Dr. Sun Yat Sen clashed with volunteer forces at Canton today and set fire to the city, destroying fifty shops, according to a Central News dispatch from Hong Kong.

Sun at Sen now threatens to bombard the city and has warned all foreigners in the city to remain indoors.

The trouble was the direct outcome of Dr. Sen's seizure of a consignment of 4800 rifles, 4300 mausers and a half million rounds of ammunition, consigned to the volunteer army which Canton merchants had recently to protect their lives and property.

The war lord permitted the mutinies to be handed but then immediately seized them alleging the mobilization of the volunteer corps threatened his existence as president of South China.

"Ninety Days in the Movies" to be His Topic

O. O. Felts, it is Understood, Plans to Offer Some Suggestions on How to Keep Boys Off The Streets and Means of Restoring Former Popular Custom of "Having Dates"

O. O. Felts, having been for the last three months engaged in the managing of a local "altar of the inarticulate art," announced that he is writing, under the nom de plume "Old Baddy," a book of personal reminiscences and observations entitled "Ninety Days in the Movies."

While the author has not as yet made plain just what will comprise the subject matter of the book, it is understood that it will be a comprehensive manual for the operation of moving picture houses. An interesting feature of the book will be a chapter devoted to the solution of the problem.

TON LITTER FEEDERS ARE VISITED ON TOUR

Litters Being Fed by Chester Meal and Charles Phillips are Inspected Friday

J. R. WILEY OF PURDUE HERE

The farms of Chester Meal in Orange township and Charles Phillips in Posey township were visited on the ton litter tour Friday and the litters these two men are feeding were inspected and studied. J. R. Wiley of Purdue came here for the tour and spoke regarding the ton litter work.

The first stop was made at Mr. Meal's farm, where Poland Chinas are being fed for the ton litter contest. At the Phillips farm two litters of Durocs are being fed for the contest. They are doing remarkably well, it is reported, and are of an excellent type.

Mr. Meal raised the heaviest ton litter in the state last year and Mr. Phillips also produced a heavy litter that was a close second.

Of splendid interest to hog breeders were two cement wallows recently constructed by Mr. Phillips at small cost. One breeder remarked that they were as cheap as a mud hole. Mr. Phillips has hog houses on runners which can be pulled out to fresh pasture and thus enable farmers to avoid unsanitary conditions in hog lots.

TEACHERS PLAN FOR SCHOOL YEAR

Institute in Session Today in Which School Program is Outlined and Discussions Held

MOST SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY

Complete List of Teachers Assured For Every School—Carthage List Is Announced

In preparation for the new school semester which will get under way in most of county schools on Monday, the teachers of the various schools, both in the county and city of Rushville, were gathering today for their first institute.

The program was outlined primarily for the purpose of getting the teachers acquainted with each other, and for the purpose of outlining the school program for the year.

The afternoon was to be devoted to sectional meetings in which the teachers were to have discussions on various topics, and at the next institute to be held the third Saturday of September, the regular instructors will be here, and begin their series of lectures.

Robert E. Mansfield, district chairman for the Defense Test Day, addressed the institute this morning from 9:30 until 10 o'clock. He impressed upon the teachers how valuable their services would be in counteracting the sovietism and communism that is permeating the colleges, if they teach children the sound fundamentals of this government.

When the school bell rings Monday morning, the teaching staff will be filled in every township, according to R. D. Farthing, county school superintendent, who has been busy this week, filling in the gaps where a complete list had not been obtained.

On account of the last hour rush for teachers, the complete list is not available, but will be published as soon as the schools can be checked and the list compiled. The Arlington and Rushville city list has been published previously, and the Carthage teaching staff has also been prepared, and is as follows:

L. A. Lockwood, principal; Edwin Heifner, physical training and history; Miss Alma Fort, home economics and Junior high school; Miss Dorie Poe, French and mathematics; Miss Mildred Murray, English; Mrs. Alta Carr, music and art; Miss Irene Carfield, commercial; Miss Mary

INTERIOR OF BUS DAMAGED

Catches Fire While Mechanic is Doing Some Soldering

One of the large motor passenger busses used on the line between here and Indianapolis, was damaged to the extent of $300 or more this morning at 6:30 o'clock, when it caught fire at the rear of the bus terminal, 121 West Second street.

A mechanic was doing some soldering work on wires, when a flash resulted, and in a short time the interior was ablaze. When the chemical truck from the fire station arrived, the bus was on fire all over, but prompt action prevented a complete loss. All of the seats were burned, and the interior wrecked.

JURIES DRAWN FOR NEW TERM

Both Petit and Grand Jurors Selected For Service During September Court Term

WILL CONVENE ON MONDAY

Routine Will be Followed on First Day of Court—One-Fourth New Cases are Divorces

The two juries have been drawn for service in the circuit court, which convenes Monday, ending the summer vacation, and a busy session is predicted for the first few weeks in the new term.

Indications are that the grand jury will not be called into session during the term, unless something develops that should require their attention. Nothing extraordinary happened during the summer months, that would call the investigators into session.

The grand jury, if called for service, would include the following sixteen, drawn by the jury commission for that purpose: Daniel Coers Orange township; Bert Mull, Walker Emory J. Power, Anderson; John J. Arnold, Union; Frank Craft; Ripley Charles McBride, Center.

The twelve men called for petit jury service, and who will be ordered to report when needed by the sheriff are as follows: John E. Laughlin Washington township; John E. Campbell, Orange; Claude R. Crane, Anderson; Joseph Bogue, Posey; John Smith, Jackson.

Ned C. King, Richland; George Austin, Union; Lowell Norris, Noble William E. Shanahan Rushville; John W. Wissing, Ripley and Edward Miller, Rushville.

With the opening of the new court term Monday, among the first business transactions will be the calling of the docket and issues, in which papers may be filed and argument heard on motions.

After this part of the business, the usual routine of bringing in prisoners, and those released on bond, will be taken up.

There is not a long list of criminal business facing the court for the beginning of the September term, although the jail has had frequent visitors all summer. Many of the prisoners have been arraigned in police court and Justice Steel's court, rather than be held over until the fall term.

In the civil court business, there were exactly 40 cases placed on file during the two months vacation. This 40 includes 10 divorce suits filed during the same period, or one-fourth of the law suits filed, were complaints for divorce.

CRASHES INTO THE REAR END

Detroit Hits Lake Shore Limited or New York Central Lines

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 30—The Detroit crashed into the rear end of the Lake Shore Limited, both en route New York Central trains at Seneca river about 30 miles from this city shortly after one o'clock this morning. Early reports were that none was killed.

At two o'clock this morning every available doctor and nurse in this city was placed on board a special train and taken to the scene of the accident to aid the injured.

Later reports show that forty two persons are known to have been injured, several of them probably fatally hurt.

SAYS THEY ARE BEHIND RED FLAG

Charles G. Dawes Departs From Set Speech in Lincoln, Neb., to Attack Senator LaFollette

TO MEET HIS OPPONENT TODAY

"We are Old Friends and Political Differences Never Affect Sincere Friends," He Says

By H. R. COX
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 30—Gratification was expressed today by Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential candidate on reports of his speech here last night on the agricultural problem. Members of his party pointed out that Dawes made no wild promises but simply declared there was a problem and Republicans would do everything in their power to restore agriculture to prosperity. Dawes departed from his set speech momentarily to attack Senator LaFollette, candidate for president on the independent ticket. A large part of the LaFollette following stands "behind the red flag," he declared.

Today Dawes and Governor Charles Bryan, Democratic candidate for vice president will meet for a few moments chat. The desire for the meeting is mutual, Dawes and Bryan told newspapermen.

"We are old friends and political differences never affect sincere friends," Dawes said.

Dawes planned to spend a quiet day and depart for Chicago at 4:40 this afternoon.

Approximately 20,000 persons were in the new stadium of the University of Nebraska to hear Dawes' speech—the opening gun of the Republican fight for the votes of middle western farmers.

Reactions of Republican leaders to the address was summed up by Gen. John J. Pershing who sat on the platform almost unrecognized in civilian dress, when he said, "it was a good address, given altogether without regard to political exigencies and is going to make farmers who heard it or read it think."

Dawes characterized Senator LaFollette as Coolidge's "chief opponent."

"What are the flags and what are the battle alignments in this campaign," he said, "On the one side is President Coolidge, standing on the Constitution of the United States."

"On the other hand his chief opponent is Robert M. LaFollette, with the red flag unfurled by a large portion of his following."

COUNTY EXHIBIT READY FOR THE FAIR OPENING

Display is Set up in Horticulture Building Friday—Shows Rush County as Leader

RAYMOND GREGG PRAISED

The Rush county exhibit, developing the fact that this county is the leader in hog production, was set up in the horticulture building on the state fair grounds Friday by Omer Trusler, W. O. Feudner and Ed Perin who did the carpenter work in connection with the display and directed the tearing down and setting up. The exhibit was hauled to Indianapolis by an R. L. Tompkins & Co., truck.

Raymond Gregg of Indianapolis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Gregg of this city, has received many compliments for the work he did in connection with the exhibit. Mr. Gregg did all of the lettering and painted the scenes that are used. Especially attractive is the rustic view he painted as a background for the electric train which represents the six ear train, loaded with hogs, that leaves Rush county every eighteen hours.

A schedule was being arranged today, for Rush county men to be present at the exhibit all the time to watch the mechanism, answer questions and pass out literature about Rush county.

LOW FREIGHT TARIFF FOR EXHIBIT STOCK

Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction Co., Files Rates For State Fair Shipments

LOW PASSENGER FARE TOO

The Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction Company has just filed to the Public Service Commission of Indiana a low rate freight tariff from all points on both divisions of the road, naming rates on mixed live stock including horses, stock, sheep and hogs, for shipment to the Indiana State Fair for exhibition purposes. These rates are in connection with the Union Traction Company, the point of delivery being only about four blocks from the State Fair Ground at Orchard Stop.

The traction company has been in close connection with Mr. William Jones Secretary of the Indiana State Fair, in all matters relating to the fair. The standard basis of rates for the fare over most railways in the state is one and a half times the regular one way fare for the round trip, but the I. & C. has established rates very much lower than the above basis so that fair patrons can go back and forth each day at less expense than they could remain in the city.

The company expects to handle crowds and is arranging for extra service.

THREE MATCHES PLAYED FRIDAY

Rush County Tennis Tournament. Progress, With Martin of Raleigh Being Put Out

OLLIE CARTMEL ELIMINATED

He and Judge Sparks Stage a Sizzling Match—Titsworth and Drago Win at Doubles

Two singles matches and one doubles match were played in the tennis tournament at the Memorial Park courts Friday. All of the contests were interesting and attracted a fair sized crowd of spectators.

In the first singles match H. Titsworth defeated F. Martin of Raleigh in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4. The loser showed occasional flashes of brilliant form but his inability to serve drive consistently caused his defeat.

In the second match Judge Will M. Sparks defeated Ollie Cartmel in a long hard-fought fracas, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. This contest was one of subtle finesse and placement rather than speed, although both players occasionally cut loose with some startling shots.

The steady play and the clever placements of Cartmel won the first set for him, but in the second and third sets his more experienced opponent displayed his full assortment of puzzling services and sharply angled passing shots which have made him famous as the dean of tennis in Rush county. Towards the end of the match the veteran winner was visibly tiring as a result of the fast pace he was setting, but with an admirable display of reserve power, he finished with a rush.

In the only doubles contest of the day, the present doubles champions, D. D. Drago and Russell Titsworth, won easily from the Allman-Phillips combination. The champions showed wonderful form in winning this contest in straight sets, 6-1, 6-0. The accurate lobbing and terrific overhead smashing of Drago, and the clever net work and bullet like service of R. Titsworth were the features of the contest.

GOVERNMENT COSTS SHOW BIG ADVANCE

Total Cost of Government in Indiana Has Increased More Than Six Times Since 1900

TAX EDUCATION IS URGED

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 30—The total cost of township, city, county and state government in Indiana has increased more than six times since 1900, John J. Brown, chairman of the state tax board, declared in a speech on "Some Tax Problems" before the eleventh annual convention of the Indiana Real Estate Association here.

In 1900, the total cost of government in Indiana was approximately $22,000,000 while during 1924 the cost will total approximately $124,000,000 Brown declared.

Brown said it is important that the public be educated to the tax problem which is one of the greatest problems the public has to face today. The increase in the cost of government cannot be attributed so much to extravagance on the part of public officials, although, he said, there is some extravagance, as much as to the necessity of public officials to keep up with rapid pace of progress in making expenditures for modern improvements.

Highways and common schools are two of the largest items in governmental costs, he declared. Money paid in taxes for common schools was multiplied over six times from 1900 to the first of this year while during the same period the cost of highways was multiplied more than eight times.

In 1900 the cost of state government was twelve per cent of the total cost of government in Indiana while in 1922 it was reduced to nine percent. The convention of realtors was to close today with election of officers.

that is being carried on in our own country.

Mr. Mansfield, who is the district chairman, talked briefly about the purposes of the day, and Fred Bell, president of the Rush County Farm Bureau; H. B. Allman, superintendent of the Rushville schools; and others spoke a few words, pledging their support of the plans.

The majority of the townships were represented and a large number of women's organizations had representatives present, more than twenty attending the meeting.

"This is not to be an act of mobilization," declared Judge Sparks, "but simply a means of reminding men and women of the need of being prepared if we are driven to war."

"It is all right for us to declare ourselves against war, if others do. None of us believes in war, and the only way to get peace in the world is for the leading nations to agree to stop war, and then compel the other nations to do the same thing."

"The thing that confronts you and me is the socialistic tendencies in this country," he asserted. "This crowd of people is trying to establish Russian sovietism here, and where are many of the good people of the country? Why they are lined up with this crowd, which proposes to overthrow our form of government. They are opposed to the Protestant churches, the Catholic churches and every church that believes in God. Russia has no religion."

"They have dropped the name of socialist because it didn't take well. They call these organizations Students' Forums or some such name. Scott Nearing and Upton Sinclair, organizer of the I. W. W., are the kind of fellows back of the movement. It has invaded our colleges and if we are not careful, our young people will come out of college as socialists."

Thank God for such men as John W. Davis and Calvin Coolidge, he said, asserting that though they were different in parties, they had common views on the fundamentals of government.

"But the principles the other party teaches are inconsistent with our form of government," the Judge continued. "The two leading parties want to work out their own problems. We may call each other names, but we won't permit any Europeans to come over here and call us names."

"Take every one of these fellows and you will find they have a prison record, or that they are nihilists, Communists or Russian soviets."

"They are working the youth movement on the theory that they will be in control if they can teach young people what their country means to them."

Judge Sparks pointed out how this foreign socialistic propaganda had worked its way into church publications.

"I don't apprehend any war soon," he declared, "but wars come. Men say every time they will never fight again, but when wars come they do. We know many a boy lost his life in the last war because we were unprepared. We will make an honest run when we can, but when we are cornered, we will protect our country. This is simply a means of taking an inventory to find where we are, in case we are compelled to defend ourselves."

"Defense Day is not to be a demonstration of war," Mr. Mansfield asserted in his short talk, "but a plan for the American people to show the world that if this thing comes again, our hearts, souls, services and money are at the service of the country for its protection."

"It is simply a method to overcome some of these pernicious propaganda that has been so graphically described by Judge Sparks. Nothing will destroy this viper like the demonstration that is proposed."

He pointed out that the young men were merely asked to enroll, not enlist, for 24 hours service.

Fred Bell, who engineered the biggest community picnic ever held in Rush county, was called upon by Mr. Cavitt. He said that there could be no better time for a picnic than on Defense Day, because everyone was interested in the project.

"It takes a lot of energy and work to put over a picnic," said Mr. Bell. "Everybody here should go home with the determination to do whatever Mr. Cavitt and Mr. Mansfield want you to do. You will find that the men in these townships know how to organize and that the women know how to cook. The women put over the picnic before and they can do it this time."

Mr. Kiplinger urged the township representatives to look after the enrollment of men of military age, and expressed the view that a special committee should be in charge. He said that there might be boys who would want to enroll, yet who could not get away from work to attend the picnic and demonstration.

Supt. Allman of the city schools said that the general committee could depend upon the schools to do anything desired because the board of education had endorsed the movement and had expressed a willingness to dismiss the schools if such a step was wanted.

tem of "How to Keep the Boys off the Streets at Night," Mr. Felts states that in dealing with this delicate problem he has hearkened back to the quaint custom prevalent among the young people of former times of "having dates", which, he explains, were social engagements between members of the superior and the inferior sexes, respectively.

He hints that his solution involves the revival of this long-abandoned custom, with a delightful innovation which is sure to make it a success, namely, attending the movies. The mechanical uncertainty of the automobile and the incessant squeak of the porch swing, which for some time were the most widely used matrimonial vehicles, suggests, Mr. Felts have caused the formerly popular custom of "dating" to fall into disfavor. His idea is that "dates" spent in the soulful silence of the picture playhouse, watching the ideal romances of the screen, will restore the obsolete usage to its deserving popularity.

Constitution Week

There would be scarcely enough weeks in the year to go around if we should observe all of the special "weeks" that are suggested, but there is one good American citizen can afford to pass by, regardless of how busy he may be with his own affairs.

This is Constitution Week. Nothing is more imperative than that we keep ever before us this basic law of the land which has been the basis of the marvelous growth of the United States of America.

It was 137 years ago that the constitution was adopted, and in recent years, in commemoration of the event a Constitution Week has been observed. Its purpose is to bring about a clearer understanding of that great document for the general welfare of this generation and posterity.

This is a worthy project and as the years go by it should receive an increasing response.

It will reap its greatest rewards in the public schools and other schools. Impressing upon the minds of children the great benefits that have been derived from following the tenets embodied in the constitution will make the future safer for the form of government which the vast majority of us enjoy, but which a small minority of radicals is trying to throw into the scrap heap.

September 17 is the constitution's birthday and the whole week should be set aside for special emphasis being placed upon some phase of the writing, adoption, interpretation and administration of the document.

School executives and teachers have shown a willingness to co-operate and even greater energy should be exerted in this direction this year.

The Prince of Wales

The Prince of Wales has come over here for a jolly good time. He acts like a regular fellow—and he must be, else he couldn't fall off a horse so many times and go back for more punishment as if he liked it.

He relishes outdoor sports—takes an active part in them—dances and enjoys good, healthful exercise just like a typical American boy. In fact, it seems a queer twist of fate that such as he should be cast for the role of wearing regal robes. They won't be a bit becoming.

Though like every other youngster, his every movement as he came to America was chronicled in the daily press. When he danced with an American maiden, she was so proud that she was willing to write about it for the newspapers.

She gave her life history, not hesitating to mention the fact that her clothes were in rags when the Prince asked her for a fox trot. A modern Cinderella, she was, and not ashamed of it.

And our bashful American girls are not forgetting that the Prince is still single. Wouldn't be a terrible blow if the young heir to the crown should find one to his liking here? Lots of boys like him do every day.

Trudging Back to School

The children are preparing to trudge back to school. They don't want to go one bit. And why should they? Nothing to do but sit between four walls every day to try to learn something that they don't want to know. And the great, happy outdoors beckoning them out to enjoy the sunshine and fresh air.

But soon they will be reconciled. After a few days, under the careful guidance of a thoughtful teacher, they will begin to take interest, and the battle will be won.

A great responsibility rests upon the teacher to get them back on the right track after vacation ends.

And an equally great responsibility rests upon the parents to back up the teacher and support them in every attempt to develop good boys and girls, who will become good American citizens, in the public schools.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — The Democrats are optimists. No denying that. They simply will not see anything but a silver lining in the political clouds, no matter how dark and threatening the sky.

Take the possibility—or, as many think, the probability—of the election being deadlocked and thrown into Congress.

In that event the Democrats do not expect simply to emerge with the election of Charles Bryan as vice president by the Senate, Bryan then to succeed to the presidency on the fourth of March when the deadlock in the House has remained unbroken. No such half-loaf as that is being considered even for a minute!

In case of a deadlock, the party of Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson is none the less confident it will emerge from the fray with Davis elected in the House as president and Bryan by the Senate as vice president.

And if that isn't political optimism, then we don't know what it is!

THERE is a plausibility given this Democratic expectancy, however, that, when presented by an enthusiastic party booster, seems almost reasonable. Here is, briefly, the way the optimists dope it:

Should the election be thrown into Congress, the La Follette senators, holding the balance of power in the Senate, are counted on as certain to favor Bryan to Davis as the selection for vice president.

Inasmuch as the Senate votes only for the two high vice presidential candidates, and votes by individuals instead of by states, they foresee Bryan's selection, in such an event, as good as cinched.

And, conceding for the present the likelihood that Davis and Bryan will be the two high vice presidential candidates, that result seems likely.

"BUT," you ask, "admitting the edge in favor of Bryan in that contingency, how do they figure Davis can win out in the House? The La Follette bloc in the House certainly cannot be expected to swing behind that greatest of La Follette aversions, a "Wall Street candidate."

Correct! But as a measure of this supreme Democratic optimism, consider this:

In case Bryan is chosen by the Senate for vice president and the House is deadlocked for president, the Democrats expect Davis to be put across BY REPUBLICAN ASSISTANCE!

REMEMBER, the House is deadlocked. Bryan already has been chosen for vice president. In case no selection is made by the House Bryan will succeed to the presidency.

Rather than permit Bryan to step into chief executive, in this event, the Democrats are confident Republicans will make possible the election of Davis.

From the purely Republican viewpoint, from the viewpoint of business interests which believe Davis' economic theories much "safer" and more reasonable than those of Bryan, such a solution doesn't sound altogether unreasonable at that, if one accepts all the hypotheses on which it is based.

REPUBLICANS wouldn't actually have to vote for Davis.

In a few of the states where party control is close, a few members simply could be "unavoidably absent." These absences would give the Democrats a voting majority in such states and the votes of these states would then go for Davis instead of Coolidge.

Half a dozen Republican absentees at the right time could turn the trick.

Republican hostility to Bryan is counted on as so deep seated and bitter that such a course might seem to them almost a victory.

They would help elect Davis not because they loved him more, but because they hated him less.

And the Dems don't care HOW it's done, just so it IS done!

Georgia Lady Says She Has Grown Stronger by Taking Cardui—Thoroughly Convicted of Its Merits.

Clyattville, Ga.—In a statement which she gave at her home on R. F. D. 1, here, Mrs. T. A. Copeland said: "I have, I believe, avoided a good deal of suffering by the use of Cardui, and am thoroughly convinced that it has been of great benefit to me."

"Before the birth of two of my children, I grew so weak and nervous I could hardly go, and suffered . . . I had a friend who told me of Cardui, so the next time when I grew so weak and run-down I began to use it. I used it three months. I grew stronger and less nervous. The baby was stronger and a better baby, and I really believe it was because I built up my strength with this splendid tonic."

Cardui has been in successful use for more than forty years. Thousands of women have written to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others. It is a mild, harmless, purely vegetable medicinal preparation—a product of practical experience, scientific investigation and pharmaceutical skill. Sell every where. INC 129

"Out of the Dust." Castle

There is a distinct individuality about the J. P. McCarthy production "Out of the Dust" showing at the Castle theatre today.

It is stirring and entertaining in quality, has considerably more human interest and less of the spectacular than the old style Western, and should go well with the majority of audiences. Mr. McCarthy received his inspiration for the production from the Frederic Remington paintings dealing with frontier days.

In addition to the scenes at the fort, such as have often been seen duplicated, there is an excellent ranch and cowboy flavor to the picture. The old-time dance-hall provides atmosphere for the big climax, where Martha Evans' husband gives the villain the beating that he deserves. The fight is a brutal affair, but thoroughly convincing. The picture throughout is well staged.

Little Pat Moore is the beauty spot of the production. The little fellow not only looks well, but acts well, and seems to have a thorough understanding of what is expected of him, despite his tender years. Robert McKim as the villain needs no introduction—he is known as one of the best heavies on the screen. Dorcas Matthews is attractive as the old-fashioned woman with affections of the modern type; and Russell Simpson fills the bill of the deserted husband as faithfully as he does that of the old army officer of the early days.

"The Love Master." Princess

Strongheart, the wonder dog, is performing wonders at every show at the Princess theatre, where his latest First National picture is the current attraction. In addition to doing the finest work he has ever done on the screen, he is holding a place as star against four newcomers to the screen, each one of whom shows the ability which destined them for the front rank of film favorites within a very short time.

Lillian Rich, Harold Austin, Lady Julie and a youngster who isn't honored with a name yet are the four who are earning screen laurels every time "The Love Master" is run through the projecting machines. The first two are a mighty attractive girl and boy, and the last two are dogs. Lady Julie, stated in private life to be Mrs. Strongheart, has the beauty, personality and acting ability to give Strongheart a strong race for first place among dog stars if Miss Jane Marlin and Laurence Trimble, producers of the Strongheart features, ever decide to star her individually. The other is a son of Strongheart, probably about a month old when the scene in which he stars was taken. He is a natural born comedian, and while his part is a minor one, the confident and satisfactory way in which he handles it gives great promise for what he will be able to do when he gets old enough to be steady on his legs.

Even Frenchmen Lose Patience

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 30.—When Mile Suzanne Lenglen decided she could not play in the Olympic tennis matches, the hopes of France for at least one glimpse of her flag on the top of the Olympic pole were shattered.

Disappointment followed the incredulity with which the announcement that she would not play was first received. Indignation came next. Frenchmen made it clear, in general comment around Paris, that they did not want any daughter of France to kill herself for the glory of the nation, but they thought that the conduct of their greatest athlete was rather unusual.

Newspaper accounts at the time and comment since then told of the terrific heat that turned the tennis stadium into an oven during the early days of the tennis tournament. It was in the vicinity of the tennis stadium that most of the runners in the cross-country races curled up and collapsed unconscious. The runners in that race said when they turned off the main road and headed around the tennis stands for the last dash into the athletic stadium they were hit in the face with a blast of heat that made them feel they were rushing into the mouth of a furnace.

There were no accommodations for spectators or competitors. There was no shelter where a brief relief from the rays of the sun could be obtained. Players who wanted to rest had to stretch out on the grass in the sun, as Dick Williams had to do several times when he was trying to save a badly wrenched ankle. There was a tent called the ladies rest room, but it was hot under the canvas it was impossible to get any rest or relief.

On one occasion Miss Helen Willis and Mrs. Satterthwaite, the English player, had to sit for almost two hours in the barroom waiting for the courtneys Allen Muir to decide that they could take a court that was not being used.

Spectators, what few there were, picked out the matches they wanted to see and did not go to the stadium until it was time for the selected match. Players did not report until the very last minute, and they lost no time in getting away from the place when they had finished their day's work.

Newspapermen, of course, had to

She sat hour after hour under a broiling sun in a pine board grandstand that let out almost as much heat as the memorable hades Toledo stadium in which Jack Dempsey won the heavyweight championship from Jess Willard.

She remained during the lunch hour and walked around from court to court watching the various matches while other less ambitious customers sought refuge under the stands where the sun couldn't get a direct shot at them.

Some criticism of Suzanne then began to be expressed privately. It was considered unusual that she had strength enough to remain so active when stronger men players were admitting the difficulty of the struggle to keep going.

The annual Whitton family reunion will be held at the Memorial park at Newcastle Sunday.

The reunion of the Bates family will be held Sunday at Memorial Park in this city.

The Glenwood Christian Missionary Society will meet Tuesday, Sept. 9, instead of next Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was postponed on account of State Fair week, next week.

Mrs. Boone Gilson entertained with a high noon dinner party Friday at her home north of the city. Covers were laid for Mrs. Fred Knecht and children, Mrs. Herbert Gilson and daughter Florabelle.

Mr. and Mrs. Poole Graham of Columbus, Ind., and Mrs. Golda Kayser, of Buenos Aires, Argentina, were the dinner guests of Mrs. Nancy A. Morris and Mrs. T. A. Dungan in this city Friday.

Miss Helen Behout entertained with a six o'clock dinner party Friday evening at her home in West Third street, her guests being Miss Nancy Johnson and George Badger and Russell Johnson of Indianapolis.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Council will be held Tuesday evening at the Callaghan store at 7:30 o'clock. The regular meeting night is Monday night, but on account of Labor Day, the meeting was changed to Tuesday night.

Word has been received in this city by relatives of the marriage of Clyde Morris, formerly of this city, which took place recently in Lincoln, Neb. However no detailed account of the wedding has been received here and the name of the bride is not known.

Miss Florine Walton entertained with a dinner party Friday at noon at her home in East Ninth street, honoring the following girls, who will leave soon to enter college: Rena Mae Norris, Vera Reynolds, Mildred Retherford, Jean Herkless, Leland Hunt, and Dorothy Logan. Other guests were Emily Maury, Louise Pittman, Jessie Allen and Virginia Hogsett. In the afternoon the girls motored to Shelbyville and attended the fair.

The annual reunion of the Hunt family was held Friday at Memorial park in this city with one hundred descendants of the family present. At the noon hour a delicious picnic dinner was served and in the afternoon a business session was held, at which time the old officers were retained to hold office for another year. They were: Gaston Hunt, of this city, president; Miss Katherine Hunt of Indianapolis, treasurer; and Mrs. Ella Worsham of this city, secretary. The reunion next year will be held at the same time and place. Out of town relatives were present from Indianapolis, Anderson and Springfield, Ill.

The Illinois people, Mr. and Mrs. John Hunt, Mrs. Mary Hunt, daughter Julia and son Charles, Mrs. Randolph and son James, all of Keosauqua, motored to this city to attend this reunion. It was the first time they ever attended and the relatives from this city were pleased to have made their acquaintance.

Mrs. William Carter was a charming hostess Friday afternoon when she entertained with a miscellaneous shower and bridge party, honoring her sister, Miss Lois Reeves, a bride-elect of October. This is the first of a series of pretty pre-nuptial events that have been planned for the bride-elect. The home was very attractively decorated in the color scheme of yellow and black, the black bowls filled with summer flowers, and the yellow linens being used to carry out the color scheme.

Four tables of bridge were in session during the afternoon, and other guests were also present. The out-of-town guests included Miss Janet Jones of Wabash, Ind., Mrs. Donald White of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. T. L. Jones of Wakefield, Ka. At the close of the afternoon the hostess served a delicious lunch.

The engagement of Miss Reeves to Henry Robert Woodward of Peoria, Ill., was announced a few weeks ago, the wedding to take place in October. She is the daughter of Mrs. Fred Retherford and is a popular young lady of this city.

According to an item in the Shelbyville Democrat, a wedding of much interest to Rush county friends, will take place tonight, when Miss Mary Correll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Correll of Morristown, becomes the bride of Louis Means, son of Mr.

Cruel Eyes Watched Murder

Here is a remarkable facial study of Miss Florence McKinnay, 17, who sat at the wheel of an automobile, while her sweetheart, Emil Zuke, strangled to death Miss Cora Raber, whom he had also promised to marry. Miss Kinney then waited while Zuke hid the body of his victim in the bushes along a lonely road near St. Joseph, Mich. The cool, almost set eyes and stern mouth of Miss Kinney are plainly shown.

SUN-BURNED ARMS GOING AND TWO-TONED FROCKS COMING IN

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for United Press)

New York, N. Y., Aug. 30—

Sunburned arms are on the wane. But two-toned frocks are in again. Arms and neck must show no two-toned color marks this season, but frocks with two tones verging into one are the latest of fashion's dictates. Shaded dresses either combine two materials, one of soft pastel tone and the other a rich, dark tone of the same color or else the material itself is two-toned. Department stores are selling gorettes and chiffons in lovely two-toned colorings which are adaptable for evening frocks. Among the favorite colors are apricot which verges into violet purple and pale green which verges into a dark brilliant green which looks like stained window glass.

Two-toned effects may also be achieved by ostrich feather banding of different shades. A flesh-pink frock with long sheer lines flares into a flounce below the knees and this entire flounce is composed of bands of ostrich which begin a flesh pink and grow deeper in color until they are deep rose at the hem. Since feather banding in all shades can be purchased in the stores there are many lovely two-toned effects which can be carried out by the seamstress.

A lovely two-toned dance frock starts out with a bodice of orchid shade on the long, bell-shaped bodice. Just below the hips, rows of pearl-shaped flounces appear, and these grow darker and deeper in color until they terminate at the hem in deep violet purple. The necks are peacock and sewed onto the skirt foundation overlapping one another.

Even organdies followed the two-toned idea with the bodice of lighter shade than the skirt which begins below the hips and the cash of two-toned ribbon.

Many advance fall models of dress variety combine two shades of the

Miss Correll, who has been employed as a bookkeeper at the Furnas Ice Cream Company, is a graduate of the Morristown high school and is a young woman of pleasing personality and much charm. Mr. Means, formerly a student at Franklin college, was athletic instructor at the Moscow school. He has been engaged to teach English at the New Palestine school during the coming year. COUNTY-WIDE PICNIC PLANNED FOR DEFENSE TEST DAY HERE

Plans Formulated at Meeting of Representatives of Organizations and the Townships

COMMITTEES ARE APPOINTED

WOMEN TO BE ENLISTED

Judge Will M. Sparks, Robert E. Mansfield, John H. Kiplinger, and Others Discuss Purposes

Plans were formulated at a meeting of representatives of Rushville organizations and the townships of the county, at the court house assembly room Friday evening, for an extensive observance of Defense Test Day by the whole county, in this city, on Friday, September 12.

A county-wide picnic, similar to those held in the past will take place at Memorial Park, and every person in the county will be asked to join in the community picnic-in dinner, which will be served under tents.

Committees were named today by the general committee composed of Voorhees Cavitt, county chairman, and Robert E. Mansfield and John H. Kiplinger, who were selected by Mr. Cavitt to assist him.

It was announced today by the committee that Judge Fred C. Gause of Indianapolis, a member of the Indiana supreme court and former Judge of the Henry circuit court at Newcastle, would deliver the principal address at the Defense Day Test meeting at the coliseum in the park.

During addresses on the subject Friday evening by a number of men, the question of following the suggestion that every young man of military age (18 to 31 years) be enrolled for 24 hours service, was raised by Ross Hutchinson, an ex-service man of Arlington, who questioned the advisability of it, because he could not see how the men could be given any reason for it.

John H. Kiplinger explained that the enrollment was merely a "paper" organization and that the names enrolled would not be placed in the hands of army officers. He asserted that it was not a scheme to enroll men in the reserve because the Defense Act of 1920, under which Defense Test Day is being held, did not provide for any such procedure.

The enrollment of men of military age for 24 hours service will be simply that they would be willing to enlist, as they did in 1917, if an emergency existed.

Mr. Cavitt presided at the meeting and Judge Will M. Sparks made the principal talk, emphasizing the need of being prepared to defend ourselves against the insidious propaganda

CHESTER MEAL WINS AT SHELBY COUNTY FAIR

AGED BOAR KILLED BY INJURY

Chester Meal of Orange township, who produced the largest ton litter in Indiana last year, won three firsts, three seconds, a third and two fourths, and had the champion sow, reserve champion sow and champion herd with his herd of Poland Chinas hogs at the Shelby county fair in Shelbyville this week.

Mr. Meal made this remarkable showing with his herd despite the fact that he was unfortunate in losing his aged boar, Revelation 2nd., which received an injury a few days before the fair which caused his death. The boar weighed 990 pounds and would have been shown at a weight of 1,000 pounds.

The prizes he won were as follows: First and fourth on acid sows, first on yearling sow, first and third on senior sow pig, second on senior boar on pair—junior sow and boar pig and on pair—junior sow and boar pig and fourth on junior boar pig.

Dr. Wickwire won the confidence of the people at ten night meetings which were held

CLOSING TO BE MORE GENERAL

Dry Goods and Clothing Stores Not to Open Labor Day

Agitation for a more general closing, in observance of Labor Day on Monday, has spread to the clothing and dry goods stores in Rushville, according to an announcement made today, and it may result in other stores and businesses suspending either for a half day, or for the entire day.

The annual holiday, while not generally observed in this city, is becoming recognized as a holiday more each year. The postoffice, banks, barber shops and members of local unions, always observe the day.

PACT IS SIGNED BY ALL NATIONS

Representatives of Big World Powers Accept London Pact, by Affixing Signatures

AGENT-GENERAL NAMED

O. D. Young, One of the Authors of Dawes-Young Plan, Will get the Machinery Started

Paris, Aug. 30—Owen D. Young, one of the authors of the Dawes-Young plan for reparations payments, was officially appointed agent-general of the reparations body today. His appointment is for a short time, merely to get the machinery started.

By LLOYD ALLEN (U. P. Staff Correspondent) London, Aug. 30—The protocols of the pact of London were signed by the diplomatic representatives of England, France, Germany, Belgium and other interested powers shortly after noon today.

The formal signatures today cemented the pact which was agreed upon and initiated on the last day of the London conference August 16. Official signatures on the pact were withheld until the parliament of both Germany and France had agreed to the pact. Germany's acceptance came yesterday after stormy debate in the Reichstag.

Ambassador Kellogg of the United States was present as an invited guest at the conference today when the protocols were signed. The United States did not sign the pact as America was represented at the inter-allied conference only as an unofficial observer.

In the absence of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Sir Erye Crow signed the pact on behalf of Great Britain. The signing was without ceremony and was a mere formality. Among the provisions of the pact is one whereby Germany is to receive a $200,000,000 loan.

SANITATION CAMPAIGN IS CLOSED IN COUNTY

Dr. G. N. Wickwire Speaks to 500 People at Ten Night Meetings Which Were Held

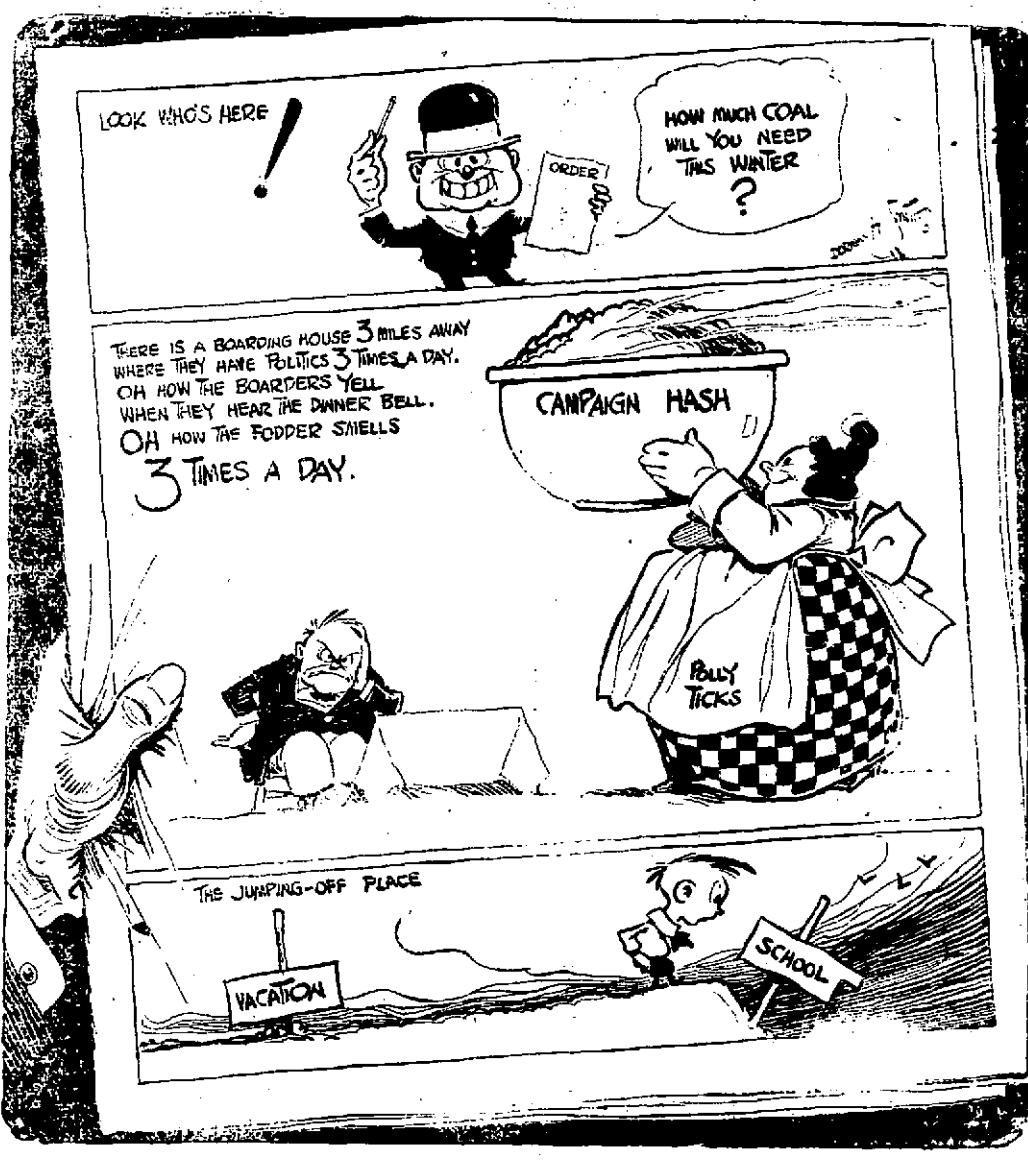

16 FIELD DEMONSTRATIONS

The swine sanitation campaign, which has been in progress in Rush county during the past ten days under the direction of Dr. G. N. Wickwire, federal veterinarian, came to a close Friday and much good was accomplished, it is believed.

There was a combined attendance of 500 at the ten night meetings held during the campaign in every township of the county except Posey and Ripley. Sixteen demonstrations were held during the morning and afternoons, the total attendance being 397, and there was some or more in every township except Ripley. Twenty-four hogs were posted by Dr. Wickwire at the demonstrations.

Dr. Wickwire won the confidence of the people at ten night meetings which were held

Drop Anchor Opposite Shanghai to Protect American Lives And Property in Impending War

RIVER FULL OF VESSELS

Strict Neutrality Will be Maintained, But Interests of All Will be Protected

Shanghai, China, Aug. 30—Eighty American marines arrived from Chee Foo today prepared to aid in the defense of the American settlement in Shanghai should the threatened civil war bring an attack upon the city. Four hundred British marines are due to arrive here tomorrow.

By D. C. BESS (U. P. Staff Correspondent) Shanghai, Aug. 30—Four United States destroyers steamed up the river and dropped anchor opposite the city today to re-inforce the other American warships here to protect American lives and interests in the impending civil war.

The river is now filled with foreign men of war, whose commanders have announced a strict neutrality would be maintained but that their several countries' interests would be protected at any cost.

Six of a squadron of General Jan's airplanes were damaged last night by spies of General Wu Pei Fu, who crept up on the field and escaped after their work was finished.

London, Aug. 30—Troops of Dr. Sun Yat Sen clashed with volunteer forces at Canton today and set fire to the city, destroying fifty shops, according to a Central News dispatch from Hong Kong.

Sun at Sen now threatens to bombard the city and has warned all foreigners in the city to remain indoors. The trouble was the direct outcome of Or. Sen's seizure of a consignment of 4800 rifles, 4300 mausers and a half million rounds of ammunition, consigned to the volunteer army which Canton merchants had recently to protect their lives and property.

The war lord permitted the munitions to be landed but then immediately seized them alleging the mobilization of the volunteer corps threatened his existence as president of South China.

O. O. Felts, it is Understood, Plans to Offer Some Suggestions on How to Keep Boys off The Streets and Means of Restoring Former Popular Custom of "Having Dates"

O. O. Felts, having been for the last three months engaged in the managing of a local "altar of the inarticulate art," announced that he is writing, under the nom de plume "Old Baldy", a book of personal reminiscences and observations entitled "Ninety Days in the Movies".

While the author has not as yet made plain just what will comprise the subject matter of the book, it is understood that it will be a comprehensive manual for the operation of moving picture houses. An interesting feature of the book will be a chapter devoted to the solution of the problem.

TON LITTER FEEDERS ARE VISITED ON TOUR

Litters, Being Fed by Chester Meal and Charles Phillips are Inspected Friday

J. R. WILEY OF PURDUE HERE

The farms of Chester Meal in Orange township and Charles Phillips in Posey township were visited on the ton litter tour Friday and the litters these two men are feeding were inspected and studied. J. R. Wiley of Purdue came here for the tour and spoke regarding the ton litter work.

The first stop was made at Mr. Meal's farm, where Poland Chinas are being fed for the ton litter contest. At the Phillips farm two litters of Durocs are being fed for the contest. They are doing remarkably well, it is reported, and are of an excellent type.

Mr. Meal raised the heaviest ton litter in the state last year and Mr. Phillips also produced a heavy litter that was a close second.

Of splendid interest to hog breeders were two cement wallows recently constructed by Mr. Phillips at small cost. One breeder remarked that they were as cheap as a mud hole. Mr. Phillips has hog houses on fresh pasture and thus enable farmers to avoid unsanitary conditions in hog lots.

TEACHERS PLAN FOR SCHOOL YEAR

Institute in Session Today in Which School Program is Outlined and Discussions Held

MOST SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY

Complete List of Teachers Assured For Every School—Carthage List Is Announced

In preparation for the new school semester which will get under way in most of county schools on Monday, the teachers of the various schools, both in the county and city of Rushville, were gathering today for their first institute.

The program was outlined primarily for the purpose of getting the teachers acquainted with each other, and for the purpose of outlining the school program for the year.

The afternoon was to be devoted to sectional meetings in which the teachers were to have discussions on various topics, and at the next institute to be held the third Saturday of September, the regular instructors will be here, and begin their series of lectures.

Robert E. Mansfield, district chairman for the Defense Test Day, addressed the institute this morning from 9:30 until 10 o'clock. He impressed upon the teachers how valuable their services would be in counteracting the sovietism and communism that is permeating the colleges, if they teach children the sound fundamentals of this government.

When the school bell rings Monday morning, the teaching staff will be filled in every township, according to B. D. Farthing, county school superintendent, who has been busy this week, filling in the gaps where a complete list had not been obtained.

On account of the last hour rush for teachers, the complete list is not available, but will be published as soon as the schools can be checked and the list compiled. The Arlington and Rushville city list has been published previously, and the Carthage teaching staff has also been prepared, and is as follows:

L. A. Leekwood, principal; Edwin Heifner, physical training and history; Miss Alma Fort, home economics and Junior high school; Miss Dorie Poe, French and mathematics; Miss Mildred Murray, English. Mrs. Alta Carr, music and art; Miss Irene Carfield, commercial; Miss Mary

Catches Fire While Mechanic is Doing Some Soldering

One of the large motor passenger buses used on the line between here and Indianapolis, was damaged to the extent of $300 or more this morning at 6:30 o'clock, when it caught fire at the rear of the bus terminal, 121 West Second street.

A mechanic was doing some soldering work on wires, when a flash resulted, and in a short time the interior was ablaze. When the chemical truck from the fire station arrived, the bus was on fire all over, but prompt action prevented a complete loss. All of the seats were burned, and the interior wrecked.

JURIES DRAWN FOR NEW TERM

Both Petit and Grand Jurors Selected For Service During September Court Term

WILL CONVENE ON MONDAY

Routine Will be Followed on First Day of Court—One-Fourth New Cases are Divorces

The two juries have been drawn for service in the circuit court, which convenes Monday, ending the summer vacation, and a busy session is predicted for the first few weeks in the new term.

Indications are that the grand jury will not be called into session during the term, unless something develops that should require their attention. Nothing extraordinary happened during the summer months, that would call the investigators into session.

The grand jury, if called for service, would include the following six men, drawn by the jury commissioners for that purpose: Daniel Coers Orange township; Bert Muff, Walker Emory J. Power, Anderson; John J. Arnold, Union; Frank Craft; Ripley Charles McBride, Center.

The twelve men called for petit jury service, and who will be ordered to report when needed by the sheriff are as follows: John E. Laughlin Washington township; John E. Campbell, Orange; Claude R. Crane, Anderson; Joseph Bogue, Posey; John Smith, Jackson.

Ned C. King, Richmond; George Austin, Union; Lowell Norris, Noble William E. Shanahan Rushville; John W. Wissing, Ripley and Edward Miller, Rushville.

With the opening of the new court term Monday, among the first business transactions will be the calling of the docket and issues, in which papers may be filed and argument heard on motions.

After this part of the business, the usual routine of bringing in prisoners, and those released on bond, will be taken up.

There is not a long list of criminal business facing the court for the beginning of the September term, although the jail has had frequent visitors all summer. Many of the prisoners have been arraigned in police court and Justice Steel's court, rather than be held over until the fall term.

In the civil court business, there were exactly 40 cases placed on file during the two months vacation. This 40 includes 10 divorce suits filed during the same period, or one-fourth of the law suits filed, were complaints for divorce.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 30—The Detroit crashed into the rear end of the Lake Shore Limited, both en route New York Central trains at Seneca river about 30 miles from this city shortly after one o'clock this morning. Early reports were that none was killed.

Later reports show that forty two persons are known to have been injured, several of them probably fatally hurt.

SAYS THEY ARE BEHIND RED FLAG

Charles G. Dawes Departs From Set Speech in Lincoln, Neb., to Attack Senator LaFollette

TO MEET HIS OPPONENT TODAY

"We are Old Friends and Political Differences Never Affect Sincere Friends," He Says

By H. R. COX (U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 30—Gratification was expressed today by Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential candidate on reports of his speech here last night on the agricultural problem. Members of his party pointed out that Dawes made no wild promises but simply declared there was a problem and Republicans would do everything in their power to restore agriculture to prosperity.

Dawes departed from his set speech momentarily to attack Senator LaFollette, candidate for president on the independent ticket. A large part of the LaFollette following stands "behind the red flag" he declared.

Today Dawes and Governor Charles Bryan, Democratic candidate for vice president will meet for a few moments chat. The desire for the meeting is mutual, Dawes and Bryan told newspapermen.

"We are old friends and political differences never affect sincere friends," Dawes said.

Dawes planned to spend a quiet day and depart for Chicago at 1:40 this afternoon.

Approximately 20,000 persons were in the new stadium of the University of Nebraska to hear Dawes' speech—the opening gun of the Republican fight for the votes of middle western farmers.

Reactions of Republican leaders to the address was summed up by Gen. John J. Pershing who sat on the platform almost unrecognized in civilian dress, when he said, "it was a good address, given altogether without regard to political exigencies and is going to make farmers who heard it or read it think."

Dawes characterized Senator LaFollette as Coolidge's "chief opponent."

"What are the flags and what are the battle alignments in this campaign," he said. "On the one side is President Coolidge, standing on the Constitution of the United States."

"On the other hand his chief opponent is Robert M. LaFollette, with the red flag unfurled by a large portion of his following."

COUNTY EXHIBIT READY FOR THE FAIR OPENING

Display is Set up in Horticulture Building Friday—Shows Rush County as Leader

RAYMOND GREGG PRAISED

The Rush county exhibit, developing the fact that this county is the leader in hog production, was set up in the horticulture building on the state fair grounds Friday by Omer Trusler, W. O. Feudner and Ed Perin who did the carpenter work in connection with the display and directed the tearing down and setting up. The exhibit was hauled to Indianapolis by an R. L. Tompkins & Co., truck.

Raymond Gregg of Indianapolis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Gregg of this city, has received many compliments for the work he did in connection with the exhibit. Mr. Gregg did all of the lettering and painted the scenes that are used. Especially attractive is the rustic view he painted as a background for the electric train which represents the six car train, loaded with hogs, that leaves Rush county every eighteen hours.

A schedule was being arranged today, for Rush county men to be present at the exhibit all the time to watch the mechanism, answer questions and pass out literature about Rush county.

LOW FREIGHT TARIFF FOR EXHIBIT STOCK

Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction Co., Files Rates For State Fair Shipments

LOW PASSENGER FARE TOO

The Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction Company has just filed to the Public Service Commission of Indiana a low rate freight tariff from all points on both divisions of the road, naming rates on mixed live stock including horses, stock, sheep and hogs, for shipment to the Indiana State Fair for exhibition purposes. These rates are in connection with the Union Traction Company, the point of delivery being only about four blocks from the State Fair Ground at Orchard Stop.

The traction company has been in close connection with Mr. William Jones Secretary of the Indiana State Fair, in all matters relating to the fair. The standard basis of rates for the fare over most railways in the state is one and a half times the regular one way fare for the round trip, but the I. & C. has established rates very much lower than the above basis so that fair patrons can go back and forth each day at less expense than they could remain in the city.

The company expects to handle crowds and is arranging for extra service.

THREE MATCHES PLAYED FRIDAY

Rush County Tennis Tournament Progress, With Martin of Raleigh Being Put Out

OLLIE CARTMEL ELIMINATED

He and Judge Sparks Stage a Sizzling Match—Titsworth and Dragoo Win at Doubles

Two singles matches and one doubles match were played in the tennis tournament at the Memorial Park courts Friday. All of the contests were interesting and attracted a fair sized crowd of spectators.

In the first singles match H. Titsworth defeated F. Martin of Raleigh in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4. The loser showed occasional flashes of brilliant form but his inability to serve drive consistently caused his defeat.

In the second match Judge Will M. Sparks defeated Ollie Cartmel in a long hard-fought fracas, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. This contest was one of subtle finesse and placement rather than speed, although both players occasionally cut loose with some startling shots.

The steady play and the clever placements of Cartmel won the first set for him, but in the second and third sets his more experienced opponent displayed his full assortment of puzzling services and sharply angled passing shots which have made him famous as the dean of tennis in Rush county. Towards the end of the match the veteran winner was visibly tiring as a result of the fast pace he was setting, but with an admirable display of reserve power, he finished with a rush.

In the only doubles contest of the day, the present doubles champions, D. D. Dragoo and Russell Titsworth, won easily from the Alman-Phillips combination. The champions showed wonderful form in winning this contest in straight sets, 6-1, 6-0. The accurate lobbing and terrific overhead smashing of Dragoo, and the clever net work and bullet like service of R. Titsworth were the features of the contest.

GOVERNMENT COSTS SHOW BIG ADVANCE

Total Cost of Government in Indiana Has Increased More Than Six Times Since 1900

TAX EDUCATION IS URGED

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 30—The total cost of township, city, county and state government in Indiana has increased more than six times since 1900, John J. Brown, chairman of the state tax board, declared in a speech on "Some Tax Problems" before the eleventh annual convention of the Indiana Real Estate Association here.

In 1900, the total cost of government in Indiana was approximately $22,000,000 while during 1924 the cost will total approximately $124,000,000 Brown declared.

Brown said it is important that the public be educated to the tax problem which is one of the greatest problems the public has to face today. The increase in the cost of government cannot be attributed so much to extravagance on the part of public officials, although, he said, there is some extravagance, as much as to the necessity of public officials to keep up with rapid pace of progress in making expenditures for modern improvements.

Highways and common schools are two of the largest items in governmental costs, he declared. Money paid in taxes for common schools was multiplied over six times from 1900 to the first of this year while during the same period the cost of highways was multiplied more than eight times.

In 1900 the cost of state government was twelve per cent of the total cost of government in Indiana while in 1922 it was reduced to nine percent. The convention of realtors was to close today with election of officers.

County-Wide Picnic Planned For Defense Test Day Here

that is being carried on in our own country.

Mr. Mansfield, who is the district chairman, talked briefly about the purposes of the day, and Fred Bell, president of the Rush County Farm Bureau; H. B. Allman, superintendent of the Rushville schools; and others spoke a few words, pledging their support of the plans.

The majority of the townships were represented and a large number of women's organizations had representatives present, more than twenty attending the meeting.

"This is not to be an act of mobilization," declared Judge Sparks, "but simply a means of reminding men and women of the need of being prepared if we are driven to war."

"It is all right for us to declare ourselves against war, if others do. None of us believes in war, and the only way to get peace in the world is for the leading nations to agree to stop war, and then compel the other nations to do the same thing."

"The thing that confronts you and me is the socialistic tendencies in this country," he asserted. "This crowd of people is trying to establish Russian sovietism here, and where are many of the good people of the country? Why they are lined up with this crowd, which proposes to overthrow our form of government. They are opposed to the Protestant churches, the Catholic churches and every church that believes in God. Russia has no religion."

"They have dropped the name of socialist because it didn't take well. They call these organizations Students' Forums or some such name. Scott Nearing and Upton Sinclair, organizer of the I. W. W., are the kind of fellows back of the movement. It has invaded our colleges and if we are not careful, our young people will come out of college as socialists."

Thank God for such men as John W. Davis and Calvin Coolidge, he said, asserting that though they were different in parties, they had common views on the fundamentals of government.

"But the principles the other party teaches are inconsistent with our form of government," the Judge continued. "The two leading parties want to work out their own problems. We may call each other names, but we won't permit any Europeans to come over here and call us names."

"Take every one of these fellows and you will find they have a prison record, or that they are nihilists, Communists or Russian sovietists."

"They are working the youth movement on the theory that they will be in control if they can teach young people what their country means to them."

Judge Sparks pointed out how this foreign socialistic propaganda had worked its way into church publications.

"I don't apprehend any war soon," he declared, "but wars come. Men say every time they will never fight again, but when wars come they do. We know many a boy lost his life in the last war because we were unprepared. We will make an honest run when we can, but when we are cornered, we will protect our country. This is simply a means of taking an inventory to find where we are, in case we are compelled to defend ourselves."

"Defense Day is not to be a demonstration of war," Mr. Mansfield asserted in his short talk. "But a plan for the American people to show the world that if this thing comes again, our hearts, souls, services and money are at the service of the country for its protection."

"It is simply a method to overcome some of this pernicious propaganda that has been so graphically described by Judge Sparks. Nothing will destroy this viper like the demonstration that is proposed."

He pointed out that the young men were merely asked to enroll, not enlist, for 24 hours service.

Fred Bell, who engineered the biggest community picnic ever held in Rush county, was called upon by Mr. Cavitt. He said that there could be no better time for a picnic than on Defense Day, because everyone was interested in the project.

"It takes a lot of energy and work to put over a picnic," said Mr. Bell. "Everybody here should go home with the determination to do whatever Mr. Cavitt and Mr. Mansfield want you to do. You will find that the men in these townships know how to organize and that the women know how to cook. The women put over the picnic before and they can do it this time."

Mr. Kiplinger urged the township representatives to look after the enrollment of men of military age, and expressed the view that a special committee should be in charge. He said that there might be boys who would want to enroll, yet who could not get away from work to attend the picnic and demonstration.

Supt. Allman of the city schools said that the general committee could depend upon the schools to do anything desired because the board of education had endorsed the movement and had expressed a willingness to dismiss the schools if such a step was wanted.

"NINTEY DAYS IN THE MOVIES" TO BE HIS TOPIC

len of "How to Keep the Boys off the Streets at Night," Mr. Felts states that in dealing with this delicate problem he has hearkened back to the quaint custom prevalent among the young people of former times of "having dates," which, he explains, were social engagements between members of the superior and the inferior sexes, respectively.

He hints that his solution involves the revival of this long-abandoned custom, with a delightful innovation which is sure to make it a success, namely, attending the movies. The mechanical uncertainty of the automobile and the incessant squeak of the porch swing, which for some time were the most widely used matrimonial vehicles, suggests, Mr. Felts have caused the formerly popular custom of "dating" to fall into disfavor. His idea is that "dates" spent in the soulful silence of the picture playhouse, watching the ideal romances of the screen, will restore the obsolete usage to its deserving popularity.

HELPED HER IN EVERY WAY

So Writes Mrs. Trombley of Sharon, Vt., Concerning Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharon, Vermont. — "I was weak and run-down, had a tired feeling and bearing-down pains."

"I saw an advertisement in the newspaper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it. It has stopped these bearing-down pains and other bad feelings, and has helped me in every way. I have so much faith in the Vegetable Compound that I keep it on hand all of the time and recommend it whenever I have the opportunity." — Mrs. LEWIS TROMBLEY, Sharon, Vermont.

Glad to Help Others

"I had pains in my back and sides for many months, and my work would have to be left undone at those times. My sister told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing her, so I tried it, and from the third bottle I was well and every one thought I looked better. I am glad to help others regain their health, and you may use my testimonial." — MABEL HARTMANN, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Are wives of today hard, careless, selfish, reckless? Is it true that marriage kills love? Do wedding bells sound the end of gaiety and pleasure for the bride? Do wives of today break vows and conventions in their mad pursuit of pleasure? Are the husbands of today responsible for flapper wives? Can the flapper wife play fast and loose with conventions, and escape unscathed by scandal? There are answers to all these questions in "Flapper Wives."

Constitution Week

There would be scarcely enough weeks in the year to go around if we should observe all of the special

"weeks" that are suggested, but there is one no good American citizen can afford to pass by, regardless of how busy he may be with his own affairs.

This is Constitution Week. Nothing is more imperative than that we keep ever before us this basic law of the land which has been the basis of the marvelous growth of the United States of America.

It was 137 years ago that the constitution was adopted, and in recent years, in commemoration of the event

a Constitution Week has been observed. Its purpose is to bring about a clearer understanding of that great document for the general welfare of this generation and posterity.

This is a worthy project and as the years go by it should receive an increasing response.

It will reap its greatest rewards in the public schools and other schools. Impressing upon the minds of children the great benefits that have been derived from following the tenets embodied in the constitution will make the future safer for the form of government which the vast majority of us enjoy, but which a small minority of radicals is trying to throw into the scrap heap.

September 17 is the constitution's birthday and the whole week should be set aside for special emphasis being placed upon some phase of the writing, adoption, interpretation and administration of the document.

School executives and teachers have shown a willingness to co-operate and even greater energy should be exerted in this direction this year.

The Prince of Wales

The Prince of Wales has come over here for a jolly good time. He acts like a regular fellow—and he must be, else he couldn't fall off a horse so many times and go back for more punishment as if he liked it.

He relishes outdoor sports—takes an active part in them—dances and enjoys good, healthful exercise just like a typical American boy. In fact, it seems a queer twist of fate that such a he should be cast for the role of wearing regal robes. They won't be a bit becoming.

Though like every other youngster, his every movement as he came to America was chronicled in the daily press. When he danced with an American maiden, she was so proud that she was willing to write about it for the newspapers.

She gave her life history, not hesitating to mention the fact that her clothes were in rags when the Prince asked her for a fox trot. A modern Cinderella, she was, and not ashamed of it.

And our bashful American girls are not forgetting that the Prince is still single. Wouldn't be a terrible blow if the young heir to the crown should find one to his liking here? Lots of boys like him do every day.

Trudging Back to School

The children are preparing to trudge back to school. They don't want to go one bit. And why should they? Nothing to do but sit between four walls every day to try to learn something that they don't want to know. And the great, happy outdoors beckoning them out to enjoy the sunshine and fresh air.

But soon they will be reconciled. After a few days, under the careful guidance of a thoughtful teacher, they will begin to take interest, and the battle will be won.

A great responsibility rests upon the teacher to get them back on the right track after vacation ends.

And an equally great responsibility rests upon the parents to back up the teacher and support them in every attempt to develop good boys and girls, who will become good American citizens, in the public schools.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTERBY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service WriterWASHINGTON—The Democrats are optimists. No denying that. They simply will not see anything but a silver lining in the political clouds, no matter how dark and threatening the sky.

Take the possibility—or, as many think, the probability—of the election being deadlocked and thrown into Congress.

In that event the Democrats do not expect simply to emerge with the election of Charles Bryan as vice president by the Senate. Bryan then to succeed to the presidency on the fourth of March when the deadlock in the House has remained unbroken. No such halfloaf as that is being considered even for a minute!

In case of a deadlock, the party of Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson is none the less confident it will emerge from the fray with Davis elected in the House as president and Bryan by the Senate as vice president.

And if that isn't political optimism, then we don't know what is!

THERE is a plausibility given this Democratic expectancy, however, that, when presented by an enthusiastic party booster, seems almost reasonable. Here is, briefly, the way the optimists dope it:

Should the election be thrown into Congress, the La Follette senators, holding the balance of power in the Senate, are counted on as certain to favor Bryan to Davis as the selection for vice president.

Inasmuch as the Senate votes only for the two high vice presidential candidates, and votes by individuals instead of by states, they foresee Bryan's selection, in such an event, as good as cinched.

And, conceding for the present the likelihood that Duwes and Bryan will be the two high vice presidential candidates, that result seems likely.

"BUT you ask, "admitting the edge in favor of Bryan in that contingency, how do they figure Davis can win out in the House? The La Follette bloc in the House certainly cannot be expected to swing behind that greatest of La Follette aversions, a "Wall Street candidate."

Correct! But as a measure of this supreme Democratic optimism, consider this:

In case Bryan is chosen by the Senate for vice president and the House is deadlocked for president, the Democrats expect Davis to be put across BY REPUBLICAN ASSISTANCE!

REMEMBER, the House is deadlocked. Bryan already has been chosen for vice president. In case no selection is made by the House Bryan will succeed to the presidency.

Rather than permit Bryan to step in as chief executive, in this event, the Democrats are confident Republicans will make possible the election of Davis.

From the purely Republican viewpoint, from the viewpoint of business interests which believe "safer" economic theories much "safer" and more reasonable than those of Bryan, such a solution doesn't sound altogether unreasonable at that, if one accepts all the hypotheses on which it is based.

REPUBLICANS wouldn't actually have to vote for Davis.

In a few of the states where party control is close, a few members simply could be "unavoidably absent." These absences would give the Democrats a voting majority in such states and the votes of these states would then go for Davis instead of Coolidge.

Half a dozen Republican absentees at the right time could turn the trick.

Republican hostility to Bryan is counted on as so deep seated and bitter that such a course might seem to them almost a "victory."

They would help elect Davis not because they loved him more, but because they hated him less.

And the Dems don't care HOW it's done, just so it IS done!

Georgia Lady Says She Has Grown Stronger by Taking Cardui—Thoroughly Convinced of Its Merits.

Clyattville, Ga.—In a statement which she gave at her home on R. F. D. 1, here, Mrs. T. A. Copeland said: "I have, I believe, avoided a good deal of suffering by the use of Cardui, and am thoroughly convinced that it has been of great benefit to me."

"Before the birth of two of my children, I grew so weak and nervous I could hardly go, and suffered. I had a friend who told me of Cardui, so the next time when I grew so weak and run-down I began to use it. I used it three months. I grew stronger and less nervous. The baby was stronger and a better baby, and I really believe it was because I built up my strength with this splendid tonic."

Cardui has been in successful use for more than forty years. Thousands of women have written to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others. MOVIES

"Out of the Dust," Castle

There is a distinct individuality about the J. P. McCarthy production "Out of the Dust" showing at the Castle theatre today.

It is stirring and entertaining in quality, has considerably more human interest and less of the spectacular than the old style Western, and should go well with the majority of audiences. Mr. McCarthy received his inspiration for the production from the Frederic Remington paintings dealing with frontier days.

In addition to the scenes at the fort, such as have often been seen duplicated, there is an excellent ranch and cowboy flavor to the picture. The old-time dance-hall provides atmosphere for the big climax, where Martha Evans' husband gives the villain the beating that he deserves. The fight is a brutal affair, but thoroughly convincing. The picture throughout is well staged.

Little Pat Moore is the beauty spot of the production. The little fellow not only looks well, but acts well, and seems to have a thorough understanding of what is expected of him, despite his tender years. Robert McKim as the villain needs no introduction—he is known as one of the best heavies on the screen. Dorcas Matthews is attractive as the old-fashioned woman with affections of the modern type; and Russell Simpson fills the bill of the deserted husband as faithfully as he does that of the old army officer of the early days.

"The Love Master," Princess

Strongheart, the wonder dog, is performing wonders at every show at the Princess theatre, where his latest First National picture is the current attraction. In addition to doing the finest work he has ever done on the screen, he is holding a place as star against four newcomers to the screen, each one of whom shows the ability which destined them for the front rank of film favorites within a very short time.

Lillian Rich, Harold Austin, Lady Julie and a youngster who isn't honored with a name yet are the four who are earning screen laurels every time "The Love Master" is run through the projecting machines. The first two are a mighty attractive girl and boy, and the last two are dogs. Lady Julie, stated in private life to be Mrs. Strongheart, has the beauty, personality and acting ability to give Strongheart a strong race for first place among dog stars if Miss Jane Marvin and Laurence Trimble, producers of the Strongheart features, ever decide to star her individually. The other is a son of Strongheart, probably about a month old when the scene in which he stars was taken. He is a natural born comedian, and while his part is a minor one, the confident and satisfactory way in which he handles it gives great promise for what he will be able to do when he gets old enough to be steady on his legs.

Even Frenchmen Lose Patience

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 30.—When Mile Suzanne Lenglen decided she could not play in the Olympic tennis matches, the hopes of France for at least one glimpse of her flag on the top of the Olympic pole were shattered.

Disappointment followed the incredulity with which the announcement that she would not play was first received. Indignation came next. Frenchmen made it clear, in general comment around Paris, that they did not want any daughter of France to kill herself for the glory of the nation, but they thought that the conduct of their greatest athlete was rather unusual.

Newspaper accounts at the time and comment since then told of the terrific heat that turned the tennis stadium into an oven during the early days of the tennis tournament. It was in the vicinity of the tennis stadium that most of the runners in the cross-country race curled up and collapsed unconscious. The runners in that race said when they turned off the main road and headed around the tennis stands for the last dash into the athletic stadium they were hit in the face with a blast of heat that made them feel they were rushing into the mouth of a furnace.

There were no accommodations for spectators or competitors. There was no shelter where a brief relief from the rays of the sun could be obtained. Players who wanted to rest had to stretch out on the grass in the sun, as Dick Williams had to do several times when he was trying to save a badly wrenched ankle. There was a tent called the ladies rest room, but it was hot under the canvas it was impossible to get any rest or relief.

On one occasion Miss Helen Wills and Mrs. Satterthwaite, the English player, had to sit for almost two hours in the barroom waiting for the courtrooms Allen Muir to decide that they could take a court that was not being used.

Spectators, what few there were, picked out the matches they wanted to see and did not go to the stadium until it was time for the selected match. Players did not report until the very last minute, and they lost no time in getting away from the place when they had finished their day's work.

Newspapermen, of course, had to report for the first match of the day and remain until the last had been finished. They observed that with one exception, from the first day to the last day of the tournament, Mile Suzanne Lenglen was one of the first to arrive and among the last to depart.

She sat hour after hour under a broiling sun in a pine board grandstand that let out almost as much heat as the memorable hades Toledo stadium in which Jack Dempsey won the heavyweight championship from Jess Willard.

She remained during the lunch hour and walked around from court to court watching the various matches while other less ambitious customers sought refuge under the stands where the sun couldn't get a direct shot at them.

Some criticism of Suzanne then began to be expressed privately. It was considered unusual that she had strength enough to remain so active when stronger men players were admitting the difficulty of the struggle to keep going.

Cruel Eyes Watched Murder

Here is a remarkable facial study of Miss Florence McKinney, 17, who sat at the wheel of an automobile when her sweetheart, Emil Zuke, strangled her to death. Miss Cora Raber, whom he had also promised to marry, Miss Kinney, then waited while Zuke hid the body of his victim in the bushes along a lonely road near St. Joseph, Mich. SUN-BURNED ARMS GOING AND TWO-TONED FROCKS COMING IN

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for United Press)
New York, N. Y., Aug. 30—

Sunburned arms are on the wane.

But two-toned frocks are in again! Arms and neck must show no two-toned color marks this season, but frocks with two tones verging into one are the latest of fashion's dictates. Shaded dresses either combine two materials, one of soft pastel tone and the other a rich, dark tone of the same color or else the material itself is two-toned. Department stores are selling georgettes and chiffons in lovely two-toned colorings which are adaptable for evening frocks. Among the favorite colors are apricot which verges into violet purple and pale green which verges into a dark brilliant green which looks like stained window glass.

Two-toned effects may also be achieved by ostrich feather banding of different shades. A flesh-pink frock with long sheer lines flares into a flounce below the knees and this entire flounce is composed of bands of ostrich which begin a flesh pink and grow deeper in color until they are deep rose at the hem. Since feather banding in all shades can be purchased in the stores there are many lovely two-toned effects which can be carried out by the seamstress.

A lovely two-toned dancer frock starts out with a bodice of orchid chiffon which grows into a deeper shade on the long, bell-shaped bodice. Just below the hips, rows of pearl-shaped flounces appear, and these grow darker and deeper in color until they terminate at the hem in deep, violet purple. The petals are perched and sewed onto the skirt foundation overlapping one another.

Even organdies followed the two-toned idea with the bodice of lighter shade than the skirt which begins below the hips and the sash of two-toned ribbon.

Many advance Fall models of dressy variety combine two shades of the same color such as brown and burnt-orange or russet, pale green and dark green, etc. Sometimes the embroidery is of lighter shade than the dress and again the sleeve is of lighter shade heavily embroidered in the darker shade of the frock.

BEADED FROCKS

Beaded dresses have by no means lost their foothold on the Fashion World. Each season we expect to learn that beaded frocks have passed into oblivion and each season we find them back again in all their glory.

Everybody likes the beaded frock in spite of the fact that beads are forever coming off since they are only attached to the gown with a chain stitch in most cases. Yet no other frocks seem to be quite as rich in appearance as those that are beautifully beaded. This season we have the tapestry designs in beadwork to correspond with frocks.

As to beaded evening gowns which many prefer to beaded daytime frocks these are still sponsored by the best gown houses, and iridescent crystals and pearls are those most important. Apricot, white, pink and yellow are favorite evening shades for frocks of beaded variety. Beading is chiefly concentrated upon the skirt although occasionally the lower portion of the bodice is beaded to correspond with the beading which extends from above the knee to the hem.

The two-toned effects, which have previously been mentioned are often covered with beadwork or gold stitching in all-over design. Again two contrasting colors may be utilized in the same manner as the frock which has a bodice of orchid chiffon and so, and a skirt which begins just below the hips, of Madonna blue. Hence the two colors are verged into one by an all-over design of iridescent beads.

Scalloped hem-lines for evening frocks are again in vogue the scallops being small and either pointed or rounded.
